

Help! My Boss Is El Chapo

Sam Walker

Jan. 12, 2019

The trial of the alleged drug kingpin offers a glimpse of how he managed people

On a makeshift gravel runway near the Mexican city of Durango, Joaquín Guzmán Loera, better known as El Chapo, climbed out of his damaged Cessna 206 feeling lucky to be alive.

He already knew one thing for certain. Miguel Angel Martínez, the inexperienced young pilot he'd recruited to transport cocaine from Colombia, wasn't working out.

Two...

To Read the Full Story

<https://www.wsj.com/articles/help-my-boss-is-el-chapo-11547269215>